

MY VOTE, MY RIGHTS

Useful information for voters who are trans, non-binary, living in long-term facilities, or without a fixed address

CANADIAN FEDERAL ELECTIONS
October 21, 2019

YOUR ID

If you don't have a government-issued photo ID, you can still vote with two pieces of ID with your name, and current address on at least one of them.

Your voting IDs do not need to have your photo or gender marker.

ID Examples: Utility bills, educational transcripts etc. in print or digital form.

NO ADDRESS OR ID

If you do not have a fixed address or required identification, you don't need to show them to be added to the voters' list.

Let the voting place staff know if you don't have a fixed address.

Complete the relevant form.

Have someone with a valid ID and proof of address to vouch for your identity.

You and the person vouching for you will be required to sign a declaration of identity.

If you live in a long-term care residence or retirement home, an employee of the long-term care facilities where you live can vouch for you and other voters in the same residence. The employee must reside in the same electoral district or adjacent electoral district as the person being vouched for.

Except for employees of long-term care facilities, one person can only vouch for one other person.

YOUR SAFETY

If you feel that your designated voting location is not a safe space for you, you can vote by mail or vote at any Elections Canada office across the country.

Vote by mail: To vote by mail, you are required to have a fixed address and must show proof of identification.

Vote at any office: To vote at a different location, you will be required to complete an application for registration and special ballot. You will also have to show identification or have someone present to vouch for your identity. Except for employees of long-term facilities, one person can vouch for only one other person.

You can also file a complaint with the Commissioner of Canada Elections at www.ccf-cce.ca.
